He Was Married Long Ago to Congressman Mahoney's Sister, Though Few Knew It, and He Says the Whole Estate is His, Exceptions to the probate of the will of the late Anastasia B. Mahoney, sister of Con-gressman Peter Paul Mahoney, were filed yes-terday by Lawyer S. S. Thomas, counsel for John P. Mahoney, husband of the testatrix, whose name is left out of the will.

Up to the time of Mrs. Mahoney's death. Dec. 4. 1887, she was believed by all but a very few intimate friends to be an unmarried woman. She was known to be Miss Mahoney by birth, was long concealed from those who thought years a teacher in the public schools of this city. At the time of her death she was principal of the primary department of the school in East Seventy-fifth street, between Second and Third avenues. On Dec. 2 last she went to the house of a friend, Miss Murray, at 230 East and Third avenues. On Dec. 2 last she went to the house of a friend, Miss Murray, at 230 East Kighty-second street, who was a follow teacher, and said she was leeling iii. Pneumonis set io, and three days later she died.

When her will, which was executed on Feb. 12. 1886, and disposed of property worth about 745,000, was presented for probate it was found that among her legal helm was a husband, John P. Mahoney, though the entire estate had been bequeathed to the testatrix's sister. Mary A. Prendergast. The legaltee and her husband, J. W. Prendergast, and Congressman Mahoney were appointed executors. The taking of testimony on the will before the Probate Clerk has been soveral times postponed, and now the ease is taken into the Surrogate's Court by the settion of the husband's attorney.

The contestant cisims that the property bequeathed by his wite to her sister originally belonged to him, and should have reverted to him upon his wife's death. It is stated that in 1867 Patrick Mahoney died intestate. He left certain property, now 206 and 208 East Eighty-sixth street, then valued at about $7,000, which was divided among his widow, his son, the contestant in the present case, and two daughters. The son, John P. A liahoney, bought his sisters' shares and paid for them. It was agreed that his mother's dower should remain in the property, and that the son should pay her interest on the amount of it. In October, 1875, he transferred the property to his wite, Anastasia B. Maboney, She continued to ray her lusseand's mother yearly interest on her dower rights until Jan. 1, 1881, when she refused to pay any longer.

rights until Jan. 1. 1881, when she refused to pay any longer.

In October, 1883, the widow Mahoney, then 78 years old, brought suit in the Supreme Court against her daughter-in-law for the amount of her dower, with accrued interest. The defence averred that the property had been bought from John P. Mahoney, and duly paid for. Judge Van Vorst gave judgment for the plaintiff, and on May 18, 1884, the judgment was paid in full. On May 23 a deed was executed by Anastasia, conveying the Eighty-sixth street property to Mary Prendergast and Peter Paul Mahoney. This deed was not recorded until July, 1887. By a deed dated June, 1887, the property was reconveyed by Mary Prendergast and Peter Paul Mahoney to their sister. The date of record of this deed is Dec. 18, 1887, nine days after Mrs. Jiahuney's death. The will offered for probate, which bequeathes the property to Mary Prendergast, is dated Feb. 12, 1886.

The contestant says, in regard to the trans-

The contestant says, in regard to the transfer of the property by him to his wite, that in 1875 he was engaged in the liquor business. To please his wife, who said she didn't like to have him make money in that business, he gave it up. At the same time she proposed that he should put his property in Eighty-sixth arreet in her name, that she might be assured of a means of support. He did so, and says that she agreed to keep the property intact, and to will it lack to him if she should die before him. Some time afterward they agreed to live apart. will it hack to him if she should die before him. Boms time afterward they agreed to live spart, and he was not aware of her desth or illness until he saw the notices in the rapers. He declares that in the suit brought by his mother to recover her dower it was proved that the tiple to the property had merely been passed over to his wife, and that she had paid nothing in compensation. Hethinks that the provisions of the will deprive him of his legal rights to the property. Mahoney was formerly librarian at the City Hall. He is now a conductor on the elevated

PENSIONS FOR DEAF VETERANS. A Movement to Necure an Increase in the

A memorial has been addressed to Congress in behalf of an increase of the pension illowed soldiers and sailors who incurred total or partial deafness during the civil war. The orial is sent from "Headquarters Silent Army of Deaf Soldiers, Sailors, and Marines," Indianapolis. It declares that the present classification of disabilities and comcale of pension rates do not rank properly the pensioner who is suffering from deafness. The monthly pension for loss of both feet or both hands is $72, while $13 a month is granted to total loss of hearing. Total desiness in one lost a leg or an arm. The matter is brought home by the question. "What could you do in the halls of Congress if totally or severely deaf? And what difference would it make in the loss of a leg or an arm—even both arms?"

It is pointed out that this defect was carefully guarded against by the examining surgeons during the war, and it is therefore to be presumed that those accepted for service were in full possession of their hearing. A list is given of the principal causes of deafness incurred in war, compiled from letters of deaf ex-soldiers. It is stated that the Commissioner of Pensions in his annual reports for the last three years had recommended additional existation in behalf of these who are afflicted with deafness incurred in service. He is quoted as saying that "the present rate is not commensurate with the degree of disability incurred. The number of applicants under this provision is and would be very small, and the amount to bid disbarsed inconsiderable." In March, 1887, there were on the pension rolls for total deafness 1,230 pensioners, and for partial deafness 1,151. Illinois has the largest number. New York is second, followed by Ohlo, Pennsylvania, Indiana, and low in the order named. The subject has been brought to the attention of Congress often before, but a special effort is to be made to secure the passage of the bill which has been prenned to provide for the desired increase. A. G. P. Brown of Brooklyn is the President of the association, and Wallace Foster of Indianapolis Becretary and Treasurer.

WATER SHORT, OF COURSE.

People will Let It Run in Cold Weather Some Day We'll Have Enough.

Chief Engineer G. W. Birdsall of the Department of Public Works, who looks after New York's water supply, felt rather grieved yesterday when told that people, including the firemen, had been complaining about the scant supply of Croton of late. "It is easily explained," said be. "We have had twenty-one days of cold weather, and people will let the water run from the faucets to keep the pipes from freezing. The consequence is that there is from twelve to filteen feet loss head than there was a month ago, and the waste amounts to five inches a day. There is no way of stopping it that I know of. We have tried everything, but so far have failed."

Mr. Birdsall says that at present the Croton River is supplying to the city $6,000,000 gallons of water per day, and the Bronx about 15,000,000 gallons.

At 6:40 yesterday morning Chief Shay at the big Broadway fire telephoned to the Central Park reservoir for more pressure of water. The order was promptly obeyed, and the full pressure kept up till after 9 o'clock. From 6:55 to 8 o'clock on Sulladay evening at the Forty-second street fire, extra pressure was called for and supplied.

Orr presided, and resolutions speaking of the integrity and industry of the dead man were offered by Mr. Duneau R. Norstell. Ex-President James Mcise, Vice-President James Mcise, Vice-President C. C. Burke, and S. M. Ayres spoke of the dead Superintendent, and Mr. Norvell's resolutions were accepted. A committee of fifty was appointed to attend the inneral services, which took place at Mr. Fletcher's home, 418 Quincy streat. Brooklyn, at 8 o'clock hast evening. The employees also met and adopted resolutions of regret for the death and esteem for the memory of Mr. Fletcher.

It was announced yesterday that the divorce proceedings begun by Stella Congdor Chapman, sister-in-law of Annie Summerville, against her husband, Harry Chapman, an ad-vance agent for Mrs. James Brown Potter, have been discontinued. The couple met, and decided to settle their differences out of court. ANTONIO D'ANDREA'S DEFENCE.

一种 新五型表现

The trial of Antonio d'Andrea as the accomplice of Chiara Cignara'e in the murder of Antonio Cignarale, Chiara's husband, on Oct. 20, 1886, was continued yesterday before Judge Gildersieeve in the General Sessions. Mrs. Cignarale was taken from the Tombe to the Court House in a carriage. She was seized with faintness in the court room, and Lawyer Howe had to obtain the consent of Judge Gildersleeve before sending for some brandy for her. At the noon recess Mrs. Cigparale was taken to the Tombs, Lawyer Howe said because she was too sick to go on the wit-

Assistant District Attorney Davis called two witnesses for the people yesterday. The first was John Dominico Brandi, who testified that he worked with d'Andrea in Eighth avenue near 137th street, at the time when Mrs. Cie. narale shot her husband. Michael Pittero tes tified that he had worked with Antonio Clena raie and Antonio d'Andrea. On one occasion the witness heard Cignarale say to d'Andrea:

"You act like a brave, You always carry a revolver with you. When I fight I fight with my flats."

Mr. Davis.—What else did he say?

"He said. You were good enough to take my wife away from me, and you ought to be good enough to fight with your flats."

Lawyer Howe moved to take the consideration of murder in the first degree from the jury. Judge Gildersleeve denied the motion.

Addressing the jury Lawyer Howe said that he would proceed to illt the drop curtain on a story of romance of passion and of tragedy. Mrs. Cignarale was a bright, pretty young woman, the pride of her old father in Italy, who gave her a considerable sum of money when she was married to Antonio Cignarale, whom she afterwari killed. With her money she paid her own and Antonio's passage by ship to America. But instead of loving, caressing, and tolling for Chiara, he commenced to subject her to the most cruel treatment—kicking, beating, and striking her with a leaden plummet. He threatened again and again to take her life.

"That woman is now in this court room," said Mr. Howe. "Her days are numbered. I believe that possibly before this week has terminated she will no longer be among the living. Dying inch by inch, as she has been confined in the Lity Prison, she has been brought here to testify. She will tell you about her husbend's pistol. It was that pistol which took his life.

The defendant, Mr. Howe said, was a man of kindly in herets, the will tell you about her outset her from her brutal husband.

The first witness for the defence was Michael Baliara, who teatified that he work evolver. Cignarale said in him." Michael, I know you have a revolver. I want you to lend it to me." The witness replied that he want was a man of kindly and was been found to have been less than human. If he had laided to protect her from her brutal husband.

The first witness for the defence was Michael Baliara, who teatified that he worked on 108th streets, and heard Demo

The petitioners urge that total deafness incapacitates a man for earning his daily bread as much as does the loss of hands or feet. They say that many ways of employment are closed to the deaf which are open to those who have lost a leg or an arm. The matter is brought thome by the question. "What could you do in the halls of Congress if totally or severely deaf? And what difference would it make in the loss of a leg or an arm—even both arms?"

It is pointed out that this defect was carefully guarded against by the examining surgeons during the war, and it is therefore to be presumed that those accepted for service were in full possession of their hearing. POKER BANISHED.

The Hebrew Progress Club Beeldes for Pinochie and Pence.

There is a ripple of excitement among Hebrew club men over the decision of the members of the Progress Club. Fifty-ninth street between Park and Lexington avenues, to banish poker playing from the club house. The club is one of the fashionable Hebrew clubs. and on its roll of members are bankers, lawyers. merchants, and some of the richest heads of Hebrew families in New York. The resolution to banish poker was almost unanimously adopted at the regular meeting of the club a few days ago. A member said last night:

"The executive officers of the club and many of the members concluded that nearly all the snarling and grumbling and bickerings in the club could be traced to the noker table. There were frequent disputes, too, as to the amount of money due the categor of the club, who was also the banker for the game. Some of the members 'hung up' their stacks of chips bought from him and he complained that some of them did not settle promptly. We then thought it time to stop poker playing, and now only pinochle, euchre, and other 'tea-table' games are allowed. I understand that some of the members will resign rather than be deprived of their poker."

Wenith Hidden in Rage. Herman Fisher has of late frequently odged at the Astoria police station. On Satorday night he was seen counting over a roll of bills as he sat on his bedside. The amazed policeman who saw him reported the fact to the Sergeant, who ordered that Fisher be searched. The policemen pulled from one of the pockets of his two coats a bank book showing deposits to his credit in the German Savings' Bank amounting to $429.73. Fisher also wore two vests, a torn shirt, a greasy neck cloth, patched trousers, and heavy brogans. He bad on no stockings, and to protect his fest and ankies from the bitter cold he had wrapped around them maper and rags. In every receptacle where it could be stowed away, in pockets sewed under patches, in his shoes, and even ited in the cloth around his neck, money was found which, when counted, footed up 868.25. He had been entered on the blotter as a vagrant, 54 years old, of German descent, and without a home.

He told Fergeant Cosgrove that he owned a house in Meeker street, Brooklyn, but that he did not live there because it was morrgaged, although he was, or pretended to be, ignorant of the amount of the lien. At first he said his wife lived in Corona, but afterward denied it. The wrappings in which his money was inclosed when swept together on the floor made a pile almost two feet high. It is said Fisher had been sleeping in barns and outhouses in Steinway on such nights as he did not lodge in the station. Justice Kavanagh will question him closely to-day to necertain whether or not he is sane, and whether he has any one to take care of him. wore two vests, a torn shirt, a greasy neck

The Lily Will Not be Hurried. Mrs. Langtry's fence has not been removed yet. The attention of Gen. Newton was again called to it yesterday. The General said goodnaturedly that he guessed the city could stand it if the fence was not removed at the precise hour promised. He seemed satisfied that the fence will go at last.
